This review is spoiler-free for the entire Mind Readers series. The Mind Keepers is probably the most disappointing book I've read in 2014. I adored Brighton's other three installments in the Mind Readers series, they were quick and really fun reads that I enjoyed a whole lot when I read them and the third book in the series even left me a sobbing mess because the ending was so emotional.

Corey is completely in love with Kate, never mind that he isn't even eighteen yet. He has been in love with her for a thousand years, or at least in terms of the quantum physics that allow the jumps they do regularly happen. Kate loves Corey and she feels safe and worthy with Corey; the only problem is she is drawn to Trip too. Trip, of course, as much as he considers Corey a friend, is ...
